Who We Are

The Coalition of Local Agency Service Providers (CLASP) is a network of professionals providing services to people with developmental disabilities in Amador, Calaveras, Tuolumne, San Joaquin, and Stanislaus counties. The purpose of CLASP is to promote education and training for direct support professionals to increase the quality-of-service delivery to our community. Our goal is to ensure a better quality of life for persons with developmental disabilities.

Sponsorship Opportunities

To keep our registration cost down, CLASP is seeking sponsors who would like to help support us in the professional development of our local community service providers. We're looking for an event sponsor, key speaker sponsors, breakout session sponsors and other supporters. This will be a great opportunity to share your information with our community, meet the local leaders of organizations, and show your overall support for our efforts by becoming a sponsor.

Join us for our first inaugural provider conference by the Coalition of Local Agency Service Providers (CLASP). We'll kick off the event with a fun and entertaining conversation about providing services with Lynn Seagle. This will be followed by an energized presentation on providing person centered services by Carol Blessing. Jamie Bossuat with Kroloff Law Firm will be presenting on the hot button legal issues affecting the service provider industry. Next, John Raffaele and Joe Macbeth will talk about the important role a Direct Support Professional plays in the communities that we serve. The morning will be capped off with a presentation of our own director of the California Department of Developmental Services, Nancy Bargmann, as she gives us some insight into the conversations around our service system in state public policy. We also will take a glimpse into the potential future direction impacting all people with developmental disabilities, their families, and the providers who support them all. All Sponsors will be recognized in Valley Mountain Regional Center's Weekly Newsletter.
